Hachiko / 忠犬ハチ公銅像

HACHI's History

Hachi was born in 1923 in Odate, Akita and when he was two months old, he was adopted by Hidesaburo Ueno, a professor in agriculture at Tokyo Imperial University who lived on the edge of the then Omukai area of Shibuya (near present-day Bunkumura). Hachi was well loved by Professor Ueno and grew into a fine Akita dog. He would see the professor off each day at the Shibuya station ticket gate, and this routine continued for a year and three months. However, during a meeting on May 21, 1925, Professor Ueno suddenly collapsed and passed away. Hachi didn't understand what had happened and continued to wait for the professor in front of the ticket gate at Shibuya station each day. The station staff, passengers, and people around the station were all moved by Hachi's devotion to wait in rain or shine.

When the Tokyo Asahi Shimbun published an article about Hachi on October 4, 1932 entitled "A beloved old dog," news of Hachi spread throughout Japan and became known as "faithful Hachiko," with money and food sent to Shibuya station for him from around the country. Local volunteers from Shibuya commented on how Hachiko was the pride of Shibuya and decided to make a bronze statue of him.

On April 21, 1934, the first "faithful dog Hachiko" statue was built by Teru Ando, and Hachiko himself joined the unveiling ceremony. On March 8, 1935, Hachiko passed away from an illness at the age of 11. His body was preserved via stuffing and stored at the National Museum of Nature and Science while his gravestone was set up at Aoyama Cemetery beside Professor Ueno's grave. Hachiko's bronze statue was dismantled to use the metal during the war, but on August 15, 1948, the second bronze statue of Hachiko was built by Takeshi Ando, the son of Teru Ando, who had built the first statue. To this day, a "faithful Hachiko memorial service" is held each year on April 8 at Shibuya station's Hachiko Square.

SPOT #02

SCRAMBLE

/ 渋谷スクランブル交差点

In 1973, the Shibuya Scramble Crossing was created as a symbol of Japan's urban landscape. Its official name is the "Shibuya Ekimae Kosaten." Known as the world's most famous and most crowded crosswalk, the crossing sees up to 500,000 people a day and up to 3,000 people cross during a single green light (which lasts for 50 seconds). This popular tourist spot fascinates visitors from abroad since so many people can walk across at the same time without bumping into each other.

SPOT #03

MIYASHITA PARK

/ ミヤシタパーク

"MIYASHITA PARK" was renovated in July 2020. A park (Miyashita Park), shopping center (RAYARD MIYASHITA PARK), and hotel (sequence MIYASHITA PARK) were combined to create a 330-meter-long multipurpose low-rise facility. The park continues to offer bouldering and a skateboard area as part of the new multipurpose facility. The shopping area is helping create a new cultural spot in Shibuya, with luxury-brand shops, record shops, a shared office, and a "yokocho" bar area.
